A NEW BUILDING FOR RESEARCH LABS

We will soon have a single building that will house USF St. Petersburg faculty research laboratories. It will be located immediately adjacent and south of the Piano Man Building. The new building will follow the design features of the Piano Man Building and give the appearance that it is all one structure. This building will have a central corridor with six individual research labs, a lab manager's office, an equipment room, and a storage room accommodating an environmental chamber. The labs will bring together faculty researchers in physics, environmental policy, geography, geology, chemistry and biology. The environmental science labs will support research on a wide range of topics. The researchers have a diverse background encompassing environmental environmental chemistry, ecology, organism behavior, and hydrology. Current research topics range from the biology of fire ants to water flow in the Everglades to studies of climate change. For more information, you can visit their website at <http://www.stpt.usf.edu/coas/espg>.
