Re-Imagining Learning Spaces: Design, Technology, and Assessment

USFSP

Jointly sponsored by:
Nelson Poynter Memorial Library & Academic Affairs

Join us to exchange ideas and collaborate interactively with the teaching and learning community, all without leaving your institution. Learning spaces remain foundational to successful learning, and their design and outfitting provide a mixture of affordances and constraints—the key is getting it right.

This Online Focus Session will discuss the landscape of today's learning spaces on the following themes:

- Determining the effectiveness and impact of new model learning spaces on student learning, engagement, and effective instruction
- Exploring how innovative space designs can facilitate and support new learning approaches, like the flipped classroom
- Reviewing faculty development programs that support optimal use of learning space through the application of active or collaborative pedagogies
- Understanding classroom technologies that support or enhance teaching and learning in model learning spaces
