James McHale, PhD., discusses exhibit with student.

On Tuesday the campus hosted our inaugural Tomorrow's Leaders Symposium in Davis Hall lobby. The event showcased the innovative research and creative work of undergraduate students produced during the past academic year under the tutelage and support of the campus faculty.

Lisa Matzner was one of USF St. Petersburg's first class of students selected to present research at the Symposium. For her Leadership Studies practicum, Matzner worked with Steve Ritch, PhD, and a long-time volunteer of CASA to investigate a troubling trend with its volunteer retention.
