INSTITUTIONAL RESEARCH & EFFECTIVENESS

I AM USF ST. PETERSBURG

J. Kelly Cieskiewicz, with his melodic last name, is Coordinator of Computer Systems Control for the campus. His position involves providing computer support service to faculty, staff and students by maintaining the Dell Computers used by all campus units. When one's computer decides to act up, who's the first person called? Answer: Kelly and his colleagues. With a big grin on his face, Kelly fixes the machine quickly and efficiently.

He first became interested in computers while serving in the Marine Corps. He was trained in Supply Management and Computer Systems. As a graduate of USF, earning a BS in Information Systems, he has worked on the USF St. Petersburg campus for around 3 and half years.

Campus Computing has just implemented a Voice over IP network. This is basically a phone system that runs over the establishing computer network. It might sound boring or meaningless, but it actually saves the Campus a bundle of money.

Kelly helps maintains nine servers, one of which gathers data for SACS. His dream for this campus is to see USF St. Petersburg grow and sustain a highly advance technological profile within the university and community.
