EO Timetable Set

The SUS will meet the 60-day timetable set by the Office of Civil Rights (OCR) to provide the necessary information to correct deficiencies or provide alternatives in the SUS's Equal Opportunity Program.

Chancellor E.T. York, in a letter to BOR members, said SUS Equal Opportunity Coordinator Harold Crosby and staff members were working on the 16 areas of alleged deficiencies raised by OCR. He noted that some of the areas already had been compiled with and documented in the State's first annual progress report. At the same time, he cited four areas "which will present the most difficulties" for the SUS. They are guidelines for impact studies, Board action approving interweaving of courses between Florida A&M University and Florida State University in five academic programs, providing OCR with alternative action to faculty transfer programs and development of a cooperative program to produce more black Ph.D.'s within the SUS.

"We feel that we have substantially complied with the commitments made in the (State) plan which was approved in 1974," York told the regents, "but that there are a few areas, such as those listed above, which will present continuing difficulties..."

York Notes Personnel Files Policy

In response to a request for clarification from President Cecil Mackey, Chancellor E.T. York reviewed SUS policies with respect to the confidentiality of personnel files and, in conclusion, noted:

"Specifically, SUS personnel records should be opened only to the employee to whom the record relates and to his supervisors. Information thereon may be given the university president for official use but should not otherwise be disclosed except upon written approval by the employee or pursuant to court order."
