Third Annual Job Expo
Scheduled for May 6-7

Expo Job Market '76, the third annual job market sponsored by the USF Cooperative Education and Placement Office to give high school and college students opportunities to meet prospective employers and learn about career opportunities, will be held May 6-7.

The Expo, which is being held in conjunction with the May 3-7 Handicapped Awareness Week on campus, is particularly designed to aid the handicapped and minority students, including women and veterans.

USF students may interview with more than 37 prospective employers for summer, permanent or cooperative education jobs at a Job Mart from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. May 6-7 in CTR 248 and 255-256. All interested persons are invited to the Career Bazaar in CTR 252 where these employers will exhibit during the same hours.

"Career Awareness" is the Expo theme, according to James Lewis, coordinator in cooperative education and placement, who is planning the event. Lewis said the Expo is intended to expose students to different careers fields and prospective employers.

A special veterans opportunity seminar from 2-4 p.m. May 5 will precede the Expo. According to Veterans Affairs Director Bob Jett, this seminar in CTR 251-E will prepare veterans, particularly recent or soon-to-be graduates, to participate in the Expo and also provide them with information on VA benefits other than educational benefits.

Decision Still Pending
On New College Reductions

A report by a faculty committee on ways to reduce operating expenditures at New College of USF for next year in the area of faculty salaries will be released only after action to implement any recommendations has been made, it has been decided.

In a memorandum to faculty, New College Provost Dr. George Mayer said that the decision to withhold details of the report until action is taken was made "because it may not be necessary to implement them in full, in part, or in modified form."

The special committee on faculty had been charged with making three recommendations to the Provost for areas in which the budget for faculty salaries could be reduced by $30,000, $45,000 or $60,000.

Dr. Mayer said that "a final resolution seems feasible within a day or two after the meeting of the New College Foundation on May 7 and 8," and he forecasts that a decision will be reached "at the earliest possible moment."

According to Dr. Mayer, the decision depends largely on action by the Foundation in renewing its contract for support of the New College program for the next academic year.

Handicapped Awareness Week
Features Various Discussions

A consciousness of the needs of the handicapped is the focus of the Handicapped Awareness Week at USF, May 3-7.

Sponsored by the Advisory Committee on Handicapped Students, the awareness week is a prelude to the national observance of Handicapped Awareness Week. All USF events are open and free to the public.

"We want to make this University more accessible, not just physically but mentally, to the handicapped," said Dale Hartman, advisor to handicapped students.

And once they are in, 'allow' them to get an education just like anyone else." Events of the week include:

--May 3, legal expert Jill Robinson, from the National Center for Law and the Handicapped, South Bend, Ind., will talk about legal issues and the rights of the handicapped, with particular emphasis on education. She will hold an informal discussion at 2 p.m. in CTR 256 and lecture at 8 p.m. in CTR 252 East.

--May 4, a group of handicapped students will hold a panel discussion aimed at their fellow students, at noon in the south side of the University Center cafeteria.

--May 5, Panel Discussions: noon - Directed at USF faculty; 2 p.m. - Directed at USF staff. Both discussions will be held in the Fireside Lounge in Argos Center.

--May 6, special session with area employers, in conjunction with the annual Job Expo at USF, discussing opportunities for the handicapped, 10 a.m.-noon, CTR 203.

--May 7, also in conjunction with the Job Expo, Bill Hughes, supervising counselor for the Bureau of Blind Services, will lead a session on placement of the handicapped, 10 a.m.-noon, CTR 203.

Anthropology Exhibit Gallery Opens
Today With African, Indian Displays

The official opening of new exhibits, including African musical instruments and taped music, skulls, skeletons and a display on the Apache Indian language, in the anthropology teaching exhibit gallery will be at 2 p.m. today in the gallery, SOC 111. The gallery will then remain open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. each Monday-Friday. It features cultural, physical archeological and linguistic anthropology displays.

The new exhibits have been researched and created by 13 students enrolled last term in Dr. Roger T. Grange’s "Museum Methods" class. Some items are on loan from the State Bureau of Historic Sites and Properties, including those in the exhibits on "Salvaging Florida’s Prehistory" and "Archeology History and Restoration," a look at the restored Brokaw-MacDoulg Mansion in Tallahassee.

Other items are on loan from faculty and other persons, including Seminole Indian clothing, Aztec idols, Pueblo pottery and Yirrkalla bark paintings from Australia.
Scholarships Available for OCT Project

Faculty are urged to announce that two partial scholarships are available for the June field project in Kingston, Jamaica, June 10-22. The scholarships provide for $300 of the $415 project costs. Project is for 4 hours credit and applicants must also be able to pay for the credit hour fees as well as the additional $115.

These scholarships are for financially disadvantaged students, only, who are full-time students at USF. Applications must include the following:
1. Name, address, telephone number, major, year in college, and grade point average;
2. Written essay stating why an international experience in Jamaica would be important to the applicant; and
3. Information that would qualify applicant for consideration because of financial circumstances.

Applications must be submitted to one of the following by noon, May 12: Keith Lupton (Project Director), FAO 122; Dr. William Schaeuerle, ADM 226; Troy Collier, ADM 153.

$9,000 Raised for Music Scholarships

Just over $9,000 was raised for USF music scholarships as a result of the two community performances of Rodgers and Hammerstein music presented by the music department in mid April.

Figures supplied by project director Joe Tomaino indicate that 3,356 persons saw the performances. (Some 1,161 attended the Bayfront performance on Apr. 13 and 2,195 saw the Apr. 14 performance at Tampa's Curtis Hixon.)

The exact total of scholarship money raised was $9,010.50.
