MEDIA REMINDER:

Journalistic decision-making focus of Wednesday discussion at USF St. Petersburg

A new model of decision making for journalists and those attempting to judge the relative morality of journalism is the topic at this Wednesday's "Hidden Curriculum" luncheon at the University of South Florida St. Petersburg.

Tom Hickey, St. Petersburg College instructor of ethics and religion, will discuss "The Masochist's Teapot: Where to Put the Handle in Media Ethics." His research paper by the same name, written in a graduate course at USF St. Petersburg, won this year's Carol Burnett Award for research in ethics

The weekly series begins at noon Wednesday, Oct. 16, in Room 118 of the Florida Center for Teachers. The presentations are sponsored by the Program for Ethics in Education and Community.
